Office of Consumer Affairs
Executive Office of the President · Virginia H. Knauer, Director

Vol. 1 No. 9, Nov. 1, 1971

Dear Consumer

DOCUMENTS

As you know, President Nixon's post-freeze economic stabilization policy goes into effect Nov. 14. Elements of this policy were shaped by conversations the President had with consumer leaders in September. My position on the Cost of Living Council will give consumers continuing representation in the battle against inflation.

I would like to know your thoughts and suggestions about our fight against inflation. However, if you have questions about the post-freeze program or complaints about possible violations of guidelines on price, wage, salary and rent increases, please get in touch with your local office of Internal Revenue Service.

Sincerely,

FTC plans report on advertising claims

Federal Trade Commission has issued special report orders to 12 marketers of TV sets and 7 manufacturers of air conditioners to require them to document advertising claims for their products. In the past FTC demanded that it be given facts behind ad claims by 7 car makers, 4 electric razor makers and 11 other air conditioner manufacturers.

Robert Pitofsky, Director of FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection, said FTC plans to use the documentation from the four industries in preparing a public report about truth in advertising. Report will be ready about Feb. 1, 1972. In addition, all company data (except trade secrets) is scheduled to be released to the public so that consumers can judge for themselves whether firms are advertising their products honestly and fairly.

Following is the list of air conditioner companies asked to document their ad claims: Crutcher Resources Corp. (Friedrich air conditioners); Fedders Corp.; Ford Motor Co. (Philco air conditioners); National Union Electric Corp. (Emerson); Sears, Roebuck & Co. (Coldspot); General Electric Co.; White Consolidated Industries (Gibson). GE and White were among the air conditioner makers originally asked to document claims. They were contacted the second time to provide supplemental reports covering claims made since the first orders were issued.

Companies asked to document claims for TV sets are Admiral Corp., Ford (Philco brand), GE, General Telephone & Electronics Corp. (Sylvania), Magnavox Co., Matsushita Electric Co. of America (Panasonic), Montgomery Ward Co. Inc. (Airline), Motorola Inc., RCA Corp., Sears, Sony Corp., Zenith Radio Corp.

Examples of advertising claims that FTC wants documented are the following:

GE—"Watt Saver" Room Air Conditioners "draw Less Wattage than any other units with the same BTU capacity."

FEDDERS—ACL18E7EX Multi-room Air Conditioner "is big enough to cool three rooms."

SEARS—"Coldspot" 5,000 BTU air conditioners "use only 7.5 amps" and are "ideal for older homes and apartments with inadequate wiring systems."

SONY—"Trinitron" Color TV's lens is "twice the size of everyone else's" giving you a "sharper, brighter picture."

RCA—XL-100 Color TV is "designed to perform longer with fewer repairs."

Dolls, rattles, lawn darts among 141 toys banned for being hazardous

Food & Drug Administration has banned the sale of 141 toys during the past 10 months because it considered them hazardous for children. FDA reports that in almost all cases the dangerous toys have been redesigned to make them safe or production of them has stopped. Some of the toys still may be available, however, because of time needed to track down and recall those most recently banned.

Although some toys have been banned, shoppers still should take care in selecting toys. A parent might try to determine if a toy is made of a brittle plastic that breaks easily, if a doll or stuffed toy might have sharp wires inside to hold its shape or if a squeaker is easy to remove from a squeeze toy.

If you believe a toy is hazardous and should not be on the market, you may want to write to FDA's Toy Review Committee, describing the toy and why you think it is dangerous. Include the name of the toy (if any), model number (if any) and name and address of manufacturer (or distributor) and store stocking the toy. Send your comments to Toy Review Committee, Bureau of Product Safety, Food & Drug Administration, 5401 Westbard Ave., Bethesda, Md. 20016.

The list comprises the generic or brand name of each toy, date of ban in parenthesis, reason for ban and manufacturer:

• Rule would regulate pre-paid mail-order purchases

Jan. 17 is deadline for filing written comments or requesting opportunity to testify on Federal Trade Commission's proposed trade regulation rule to protect consumers by requiring full refunds to persons placing mail orders if their pre-paid merchandise is not shipped within 21 days. Following are some provisions of the proposed rule:

1. If mail-order seller is unable to ship merchandise within 21 days from receipt of payment for the order, he must promptly refund all money to buyer;
2. Seller does not have to ship within 21 days if he has clearly disclosed the estimated shipping time in all advertisements or obtained the buyer's written consent to a specified delay;
3. All mail-order advertisements and catalogs must contain the following statement if they do not clearly disclose the estimated time for shipment: "Notice: Federal regulation requires that merchandise must be shipped within 21 days or all money must be refunded";
4. In credit transactions, accounts must be credited so the buyer will not be billed for merchandise not shipped within the allotted time;
5. Magazine and other serial deliveries are not covered by the rule except for the initial shipment—subscription offers are subject to the same advertising disclosure requirements as other mail-order solicitations;
6. Trading stamps are treated as money and must be refunded if ordered merchandise is not shipped—required disclosure for estimated shipping time applies to catalogs and ads.

Public hearings will be 10 a.m., Jan. 24 & 25, 1972, Room 532, FTC Building, Washington, D.C. (For details, see FEDERAL REGISTER, Sept. 28, 1971, page 19092.)

Write to Assistant Director for Rules & Guides, Bureau of Consumer Protection, Federal Trade Commission Washington, D.C. 20580; to extent practicable, file 20 copies of written statements longer than 2 pages.

• Modern advertising practices

No deadline has been set for filing comments with Federal Trade Commission for use in its study of modern advertising practices and the impact of those practices—especially TV advertising—on consumers. FTC is interested in comments about (1) advertising addressed to children; (2) whether TV commercials unfairly exploit desires, fears, anxieties; (3) whether technical aspects of preparing and producing TV commercials facilitate deception; (4) consumers' physical, emotional and psychological responses to advertising. (For details, see Federal Register, Aug. 25, page 16698, & Sept. 28, page 19100.)

Write to Director, Bureau of Consumer Protection, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C. 20580.
